CAMP

PRESENTS

Become a paleontologist for Ms. Yongue's Museum of Natural History. In this camp, you will receive a shipment of dinosaur bones and work together to categorize the fossil remains to configure a creature that walked the Earth thousands of years ago. Bone replicas will be carved from plaster and molds will be made. Then, construction takes place and of course, PAINTING. Your inner explorer will get to travel back to The Land Before Time.

About the Curator

Ms. Yongue graduated from East Carolina in Child Development in Art Education. As an experienced muralist and faux finish artist, Ms. Yongue has devoted herself to event design and private instruction for over 20 years. She is young at heart, so camps are where she can let her passion run wild.

She is in her fifth-year teaching at Christ Covenant, where she was able to introduce our families to the world of Glow last year. She has two children and was a former CCS parent herself. Her daughter is currently at East Carolina in the science rehabilitation program and working as an accomplished artist and son attends UNCW and works in the arts as a photographer.

~Fun Fact~

The single biggest dinosaur bone ever found is a 5×5 ft. backbone fossil that weighed over a ton.
